

Joint Declaration on The EU-China Partnership on Urbanisation

Brussels, 3 May 2012

The European Commission (hereinafter referred to as 'the European Side') and the Government of the People's Republic of China (hereinafter referred to as 'the Chinese Side') affirm that:

We live in an interdependent world dominated by global opportunities and challenges. The economies and societies of China and the European Union are interlinked on an unprecedented scale in the history of our relations, and therefore we need to draw on experience from each other, strengthen interaction and cooperation, jointly seize the opportunities and cope with the challenges of the future, and strive to achieve win-win results.

The level of urbanisation in China has exceeded 50% and is in rapid development. This offers a huge development potential and market opportunities. At the same time, China faces challenges of optimising the layout and form of urbanisation, promoting the transfer of rural populations into cities, and improving the sustainability of the city.

About three quarters of the EU's population lives in an urban context. The EU and its Member States have developed a comprehensive framework and accumulated rich experience relating to urban development, while facing challenges of energy and natural resource conservation and the reduction of greenhouse gas emissions.

Both sides recognize that the common interests and synergy between our respective long-term economic strategies have laid a sound foundation and brought historical opportunities in tackling together the challenges of urbanisation and jointly promoting healthy urbanisation development.

Therefore, both sides declare that efforts will be stepped up centering on the EU-China Partnership on Urbanisation (hereinafter referred to as 'the Partnership')

China and EU will take turns to host the Forum and deliverables of the Forum will be presented to the leaders on both sides.
4. The Partnership is aimed at tackling challenges together through cooperative efforts between stakeholders at all appropriate levels, including national, regional and local levels. The Partnership will highlight, inter alia, the following subjects:
