Energy targets and measures

a) To define energy efficiency target(s)

As a hybrid of the two represents a better benchmark upon which to frame a 2030 objective

National

Legally binding

Each Member State should commit to achieving improvements at national level, and those national commitments should be congruent with an overall EU target. These should be a macro-level target to reduce by X% the energy intensity of real GDP (kY/€ real GDP).

Yes

DB supports the recommendations made in SWD (2013) 180 final, Guidance 40. The Commission should consider the inclusion of similar concrete policy options in future energy efficiency legislation or revisions thereof. Also, regarding Directive 2012/27/EU, Article 7(1), CER believes that Member States should not have the possibility to exclude transport from energy savings schemes.
