

Does a grid development project affect you, your city, your community or your region?

- The aim of this on-line toolkit is to lead to a constructive communication and cooperation among all stakeholders, including you!
- As a concerned citizen, this toolkit helps you gather important information about grid development projects in Europe and gives advice on how you – as a local stakeholder – can participate in all relevant dialogues to safeguard your interests and rights.
- As an environmental NGO, you have an active role to play in all stages of a grid development project. The toolkit will help you identify ways in which you may contribute your political and technical expertise, raise awareness about environmental impacts and play an active role in discussions with other stakeholders.
- As a national or regional policy maker, this toolkit helps you better engage with your constituents and other stakeholders involved in activities related to grid development projects.
- As a representative of a transmission system operator this toolkit helps you identify relevant aspects for communication and stakeholder involvement activities surrounding grid development projects.
